Logan's practice focuses on health advocacy, privacy, freedom of information, mental health advocacy and medico-legal defence.

Logan specializes in providing incident and risk management advice to hospitals and health care organizations when they are faced with complex privacy incidents or potential litigation. He also represents those same organizations as defence counsel. Logan has appeared before all levels of court in Ontario as well as before the Human Rights Tribunal and Information and Privacy Commissioner.

While studying at Queen's University, Logan served for two years as a member of the University Senate, Law Students Society, Society of Graduate and Professional Students, and Law Faculty Board. He also spent one semester as an exchange student at the University of Hong Kong.

He was a summer and articling student with BLG before joining the firm as a lawyer in 2013.
