Denes practices competition, marketing, international trade and foreign investment law. He provides expertise and advice on:

- proposed mergers
- competition compliance
- criminal cartel matters
- foreign investment review
- advertising and marketing law
- international trade matters, including tariff classification, dumping and subsidy investigations

He also litigates class action claims against clients relating to alleged violations of the cartel and misleading advertising provisions of the Competition Act. Denes is also Co-Leader of the firms Public Policy and Government Relations Group.

Making use of his dual Canadian and American law degrees, Denes regularly collaborates with attorneys in other jurisdictions to ensure consistent and outstanding representation for his large multinational clients.

Denes recently spent a year seconded as corporate counsel to one of the world's largest information technology corporations.
